OF

AN EDIFICE

FOR THE

ACADEMY OF NATURAL SCIENCES
OF PHILADELPHIA,

October 30, 1872.

PHILADELPHIA:
COLLINS, PRINTER, 705 JAYNE STREET.
1873.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.

Extracts from By-Laws of the Academy.

“ART. III. The [Publication] Committee shall receive and cause to be published as early as possible all papers ordered for publication by the Academy, and print them, as far as practicable, in the order in which they have been referred. And it shall also prepare and print in the ‘Proceedings’ abstracts from the minutes of the meetings of the Academy and summaries of verbal communications made to the Academy or any of its Sections, but only from notes furnished by their authors, which the committee may modify or decline, subject, however, to an appeal to the Academy.

“ART. IV. No author shall be permitted to make any other than verbal alterations in his paper while it is in the hands of the Publication Committee without the consent of the special committee which recommended its publication; nor is the Publication Committee authorized to make any alteration in any paper committed to it without the consent of its author. All alterations proposed to be made (other than verbal) must be submitted to the special committee which recommended its publication.

“ART. VI. It is the duty of the committee to read the proof-sheets of all papers, and, when practicable, they shall be submitted for correction to the author also.

“ART. VIII. Every author is entitled to receive one copy of the number or numbers of the issue in which his paper appears, and, on timely application to the committee, twenty extra copies of his paper at the cost of the Academy. But he may obtain any additional number of copies at his own expense, on such terms as may be agreed upon by himself and the printer.”

The PUBLICATION COMMITTEE is prepared to furnish suitable illustrations for papers published in the Proceedings.

Particular attention is directed to ART. IV. of the By-Laws.

No additions to or alterations of papers by their authors will be permitted except as therein provided: and all printer's charges for alterations after a paper has been set in type must be defrayed by the author thereof. The committee assume that every paper coming into its possession is as perfect and complete as its author can make it, and consequently decline any pecuniary responsibility for the cost of after-thoughts.

The Publication Committee decline to furnish or to take charge of orders for copies of papers additional to those secured to each author by Art. VIII. of the By-Laws.
